AN EXPENSIVE TEAR FOR ROSENTHAL

New York, Aug. 25.—(UP)—Benjamin Rosenthal's taxicab struck a man and ripped his pants off but otherwise left him unharmed.

The man leaped into a taxicab and disappeared, which story has been the end of this story if Miss Helen McCallen, of Chicago, had not intervened. Miss McCallen was one of hundreds among theatre crowds who witnessed the incident.

"If you were driving in Illinois you wouldn't get away with that," she told Rosenthal.

Rosenthal expressed himself regarding Illinois in a manner objectionable to Miss McCallen.

"Say that again and I'll slap your face," she told him.

Rosenthal did.

So did Miss McCallen.

Then she had Rosenthal arrested for reckless driving.

JOHN COOLIDGE AT LAKE CAMP COMMUNITY DANCE

HIS DANCE PARTNERS WERE 2
YOUNG LADIES HEAVING
HASH

ARE PLANNING TO BE SCHOOL
TEACHERS AND WORKING AT HOTEL IN SUMMER

By PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent

Lake Camp, Wyo., Aug. 25.—Dudes and sagebrushers mingle like the colonels lady and Judy O'Grady in the open hearted west and last night young John Coolidge, 21 year old son of the president, joined the fraternity by dancing with two waitresses at a community dance here.

While Mrs. Coolidge sat nearby and the president lay sleeping at the hotel after a strenuous day of fishing Young John sought the acquaintance of two young ladies who are planning to be school teachers but who are spending their summer heaving hash at the Community lodge as the peculiar language of this country explains it.

Eastern rhetoricians arriving here have been astounded to learn that "dudes" are people who travel through Yellowstone living in hotels, "sagebrushers" those who camp along the way, "heavers" young girls, usually college students, who wait tables and "savages" any employee of the hotel companies, man or woman.

Young John is a "dude" because he is stopping at the hotel with his distinguished father and mother. The pretty misses were Fern and Alta Smith, Lyons, Kan., 20 and 19 years respectively.

Students at the Pittsburgh, Kansas, state teachers college are "heavers" and "savages" because they carry trays in the hotel lodge.

While the terms at first implied to the easterners, some degree of opprobrium they are recognized grammatically in the Yellowstone. So there was little surprise when young John sent word back stage after the community theatrical on the log stage at the community house announcing he would like a dance with the Misses Smith.

The sisters sang songs together in the theatrical and more than once smiled at young John who sat in the first row with his mother. He danced first with Fern, twice, then with Alta and then with Fern again before the dance broke up at 1:03 P. M. Both Mrs. Coolidge and John remained until the end.

Young John is a good dancer although he has a peculiar continuous two-step style which seemed to keep the young ladies upon their toes following him. He circles with his own two-step to every piece and holds the young lady close to him. Fern said later he was a very nice boy and "dances well."

They declined to say more to newspapermen who danced with them later.

Booming of Guns In Minnesota Gubernatorial Politics Being Heard Throughout the State

C. M. JOHNSTON, RUSH CITY, TO BE CANDIDATE

SOUTHERN MINNESOTA MAN IS FORMER PRESIDENT STATE FAIR BOARD

RAISES ISSUE OF STATE SANITARY LIVESTOCK BOARD TO CHRISTIANSON

St. Paul, Aug. 25.—(UP)—The booming of guns in Minnesota gubernatorial politics is being heard throughout the state today.

A "Big Bertha" fired late Wednesday was the announcement of Curtis M. Johnston, Rush City, former president of the state fair board, that he will be a candidate for the republican nomination in the next campaign.

The opposition to Governor Theodore Christianson by the state sanitary livestock board was raised as an issue by Johnston in his announcement.

Governor Christianson was expected today to answer the charge of the board that he had insisted his own selection of a quarantine officer for the board be appointed.

Johnston's entrance into the race was made with a direct attack upon the present governor and the "Big Three"—the state department of administration and finance.

"There is a strong growing urge for a more representative state government," Johnston said in his announcement. "Efficiency and economy are wanted now more than ever. The department of administration and finance has not made good and I have been urged to take the lead in the fight against the 'Big Three' in state politics.

In stating that he would file for the nomination for governor in the next primary campaign, Johnston outlined the issues he raised in a previous campaign for the nomination.

Already there has been a great deal of discussion as to likelihoods in the 1928 primary campaign.

There is a possibility of Governor Christianson making the race for the United States senate. Close associates of the governor, however, are of the opinion that he will be a candidate for re-election to his present post.

Should the governor decide to make the race for the senate seat, Arthur E. Nelson, former mayor of St. Paul, is expected to attempt to succeed him.

Others prominently mentioned are W. I. Nolan, lieutenant governor; Ray P. Chase, state auditor; Dr. C. A. Ingerson, Ramsey county coroner, and Julius A. Schmah, state treasurer.

Viscount Lewisham, heir to the Earl of Dartmouth, and the Viscountess Lewisham were among the injured.

Recent heavy rains were believed to have caused the tracks to sink when the train passed over them, causing derailment.

'WORST THING ABOUT HAWAII IS LEAVING IT'

Honolulu, Aug. 25.—(UP)—Arthur Goebel and Lieut. W. V. Davis, winners of the first prize in the Dole air race with the plane Woolaroo, were on their way back to California today.

They sailed with regrets, for both had become attached to the island and its friendly people.

"The worst thing about Hawaii is leaving it," said Davis. As their vessel cleared, Martin Jensen, second prize winner, flew his plane over the ship and escorted it out of the harbor as far as Diamond Head.

Hill was to fly the plane to the neighboring field where it would be fuelled and provisioned and placed at the top of the tilted runway from which Charles A. Lindbergh, Clarence D. Chamberlin and Commander Richard E. Byrd started for Europe.

YEAR WITHOUT MUCH OF SUMMER

Washington, Aug. 25.—(UP)—Though this may not be the "year without a summer," the past week in a major portion of the country had all the earmarks of something of the kind.

The week, as a whole, was abnormally cool in practically all sections of the Rocky Mountains, according to the weather bureau's official tabulation.

The continued cool weather materially retarded progress of crops in most sections east of the Rockies.

Rock Island, Ill., Aug. 25.—(UP)—Lightning which struck wires running from a government drill boat exploded 50 pounds of dynamite planted in the Mississippi river bottom, almost wrecking the vessel which was carrying 42 men.

GUARD OF HONOR FOR SACCO, VANZETTI

CROWDS PASS TO AND FRO FROM THE BERS TO-
DAY

DAY OF FUNERAL NOW SET FOR THIS COMING SUN-
DAY

By HENRY MINOTT

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Boston, Aug. 25.—Under a guard of honor, the bodies of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti will lie in state for three days, beginning this afternoon, in a dingy north end undertaking establishment.

Just as the state prison was surrounded by police when the famous anarchists were executed early Tuesday, so will armed guards watch over the mortician's parlors as the crowds pass to and from the biers.

Without success, the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee tried to hire a large public hall. Even the scenic auditorium, where many protest meetings were held, was closed to them.

Thus it was that the bodies were to be removed today to Joe Langone's parlors on Hanover Street, only a few steps from the defense headquarters.

Until Sunday, the day of the funeral, the bodies, in plain wooden coffins of mahogany finish, will remain there on view day and night. At the head of each bier will be a glauze laurel wreath, spanned by a broad purple ribbon. The wreaths came from a woman sympathizer.

As there is only one entrance to Langone's establishment, only a few persons will be admitted at a time. As soon as one group has filed past the caskets they will pass out and another group will enter.

FOREST FIRE CONSUMES 12,000 ACRES OF TIMBER

Los Angeles, Aug. 25.—(UP)—A forest fire which has already consumed 12,000 acres of timber was sweeping toward the valuable property of the Tweedy Lake club.

Approximately 1,000 men fighting the fire failed to prevent it from jumping the Pince canyon road. The Bowre ranch in Pine Canyon has been destroyed.

NEW DEVICE TO AID AIRPLANES

NOISE OF PLANE AUTOMATICALLY TURNS ON LIGHTS OF LANDING FIELD

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 25.—(UP)—A device by which the noise produced by an airplane automatically turns on the flood lights of a landing field has been successfully tried out at Bettis Field near McKeesport.

The device, an invention of T. Spooner, a Westinghouse research engineer, was tested by Merle McIntosh, a pilot of the Pittsburgh to Cleveland air mail route, last night.

Moltrup, flying the plane "Miss Youngstown" from Cleveland to Bettis Field, circled the field until the sound sensitive apparatus turned on the flood lights and then landed.

Spooner's invention is attuned to have the hum of an airplane operate it, but other noises will not affect its functions. A tiny current is amplified when the airplane noise is picked up by a loud speaker which serves as the "ear" of the invention.

Within one minute is strong enough to close the lighting switch. After the plane lands, the lights are turned off by hand.

Homer Hicks, husband of Mary, and Robert Pool, his son-in-law, are in the hospital with severe burns and may die.

GENERAL QUEST FOR LOST FLIERS ENDING TODAY

ONLY CRUISER OMAHA AND DESTROYER DIVISION CONTINUE SEARCH

SEEK AREAS WHERE LIFE RAFTS OF AVIATORS MAY HAVE DRIFTED

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 25.—(UP)—Most of the U. S. naval vessels searching for Miss Mildred Doran and six men, missing Dole fliers, prepared to end the quest today and return to regular duty, but the cruiser Omaha and a destroyer division will continue the hunt until the last vestige of hope for the girl and the airmen is gone.

The naval search originally was scheduled to end Tuesday. Then it was continued until today. Last night Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of naval operations, telegraphed from Washington to Admiral R. H. Jackson, commander in chief of the U. S. battle fleet, authorizing him to use his own judgment as to continued search.

Jackson immediately ordered the Omaha and the destroyers to remain on duty, searching areas to which the missing planes or their life rafts might have drifted.

25 SHIPS TO CONTINUE SEARCH

Washington, Aug. 25.—(UP)—The United States navy today announced plans for a five to six day prolongation of its Pacific wide search for the seven missing Hawaii aviators.

More than 25 ships will participate in the continued search, which will be extended far to the southwest of the island of Hawaii.

Admiral R. H. Jackson, battle fleet commander, has ordered Admiral Luke McNamee, fleet destroyer chief, to take the light cruiser Omaha and six destroyers straight across the Pacific to Hawaii. The Omaha with 15 destroyers is now searching areas 500 to 600 miles out from San Francisco.

Rear Admiral John D. McDonald, naval commandant at Honolulu, reported he would send the mine sweepers Widgeon and Ortolan to search southwest of Hawaii for 529 miles.

The mine sweepers Pelican and the tug Sunnadin will search near the islands northwest of the island of Kauai, of the Hawaiian group, as far as French Frigate Shoal. Eight submarines now stationed at Pearl harbor will cover the area southwest from Pearl harbor for 300 miles.

QUITS BUSINESS WHEN IT LOSES ITS 12 CUSTOMERS

Roggen, Colo., Aug. 25.—(UP)—The Roggen Electric Light Co., serving the town of Roggen with electricity, today went out of business because it had lost most of its 12 customers.

When some of the dozen customers did not like the service, they did not bother about a franchise fight. They merely installed their own individual plants.

The Colorado public utilities commission yesterday agreed that business prospects looked discouraging for the company and permitted it to discontinue service.

MARITIME PROVINCES ARE HARD HIT

NEWFOUNDLAND ALSO FEELS BRUNT OF THE

VIOLENT WEATHER MISSES NEW YORK, EXTENDS INTO NEW ENGLAND

New York, Aug. 25.—(UP)—Severe storm damage in the maritime provinces of Canada and in Newfoundland was indicated today. Violent weather missed New York but extended into New England and moved northeastward along its course.

Communication with Nova Scotia and Newfoundland was interrupted from New York. Communication companies in Montreal had been out of touch with Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick since yesterday at 6 P. M.

Warning of the approach of the storm preceded it by more than 24 hours, when it began roaring north and east from the tropics.

Off the north Atlantic coast the storm beat against shipping and most vessels were expected to arrive in this port late for the next few days.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, Aug. 25.—An 80-mile-an-hour wind, accompanied by heavy rain, swept across Newfoundland today from the southwest, isolating most of the island from St. Johns and preventing an immediate estimate of damage.

Rain continued for four hours. When the weather cleared and at noon the wind showed signs of abating. All telegraph lines were down and only portions of the peninsula of Avalon were in communication with this city.

One schooner, name unknown, was sighted shortly before noon from the signal tower. Her canvas had been blown away and she was in distress and drifting seaward. A small steamer put out to assist her.

The Red Cross liner Issa made port at 7 A. M., having felt the full force of the storm for five hours. The vessel was unable to dock and swing at anchor in the stream. One steamer and several sailing vessels dragged their anchors but escaped with minor damage.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Aug. 25.—Nova Scotia was recovering today from a severe wind and rain storm which struck the province yesterday evening and subsided early today.

Considerable superficial damage was done, but so far today there had been no reports of wrecked vessels nor of loss of life.

FLOODS AND WASHOUTS NUMEROUS

Boston, Aug. 25.—Floods and washouts today lay in the wake of a terrific downpour that swept New England during the night.

Rainfall in many places was reported the heaviest in years.

Throughout this section railroad and street car service was crippled. Telephone lines were down, crops were damaged and streams overflowed.

The heaviest rainfall appeared to have been in southwestern Massachusetts, where Taunton reported 3.71 inches, Brockton 3.12 and Plymouth 3.06.

WHITE RIVER ON ANOTHER RAMPAGE

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 25.—Flood stricken eastern Arkansas, just recovering from floods that prostrated it during the winter and spring of 1926-27, was being given another bludgeoning today as the waters of the White river poured into the basin farmlands through the crevasses and gaps caused by the last inundation.

Washington, Aug. 25.—The Atlantic coast gales were reported today by the United States weather bureau to have moved north of Newfoundland.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Boston, Aug. 25.—Under a guard of honor, the bodies of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti will lie in state for three days, beginning this afternoon, in a dingy north end undertaking establishment.

Just as the state prison was surrounded by police when the famous anarchists were executed early Tuesday, so will armed guards watch over the mortician's parlors as the crowds pass to and from the biers.

Without success, the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee tried to hire a large public hall. Even the scenic auditorium, where many protest meetings were held, was closed to them.

Thus it was that the bodies were to be removed today to Joe Langone's parlors on Hanover Street, only a few steps from the defense headquarters.

Until Sunday, the day of the funeral, the bodies, in plain wooden coffins of mahogany finish, will remain there on view day and night. At the head of each bier will be a laurel wreath, spanned by a broad purple ribbon. The wreaths came from a woman sympathizer.

As there is only one entrance to Langone's establishment, only a few persons will be admitted at a time. As soon as one group has filed past the caskets they will pass out and another group will enter.

FOREST FIRE
CONSUMES 12,000
ACRES OF TIMBER

Los Angeles, Aug. 25.—(UP)—A forest fire which has already consumed 12,000 acres of timber was sweeping toward the valuable property of the Tweedy Lake club.

Approximately 1,000 men fighting the fire failed to prevent it from jumping the Pince canyon road. The Bowre ranch in Pine Canyon has been destroyed.

NOISE OF PLANE AUTOMATIC-ALLY TURNS ON LIGHTS OF LANDING FIELD

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 25.—(UP)—A device by which the noise produced by an airplane automatically turns on the flood lights of a landing field has been successfully tried out at Bettis Field near McKeesport.

The device, an invention of T. Spooner, a Westinghouse research engineer, was tested by Merle McIntosh, a pilot of the Pittsburgh to Cleveland air mail route, last night.

Moltrup, flying the plane "Miss Youngstown" from Cleveland to Bettis Field, circled the field until the sound sensitive apparatus turned on the flood lights and then landed.

Spooner's invention is attuned to have the hum of an airplane operate it, but other noises will not affect its functions. A tiny current is amplified when the airplane noise is picked up by a loud speaker which serves as the "ear" of the invention and within one minute is strong enough to close the lighting switch. After the plane lands, the lights are turned off by hand.

KEROSENE-GASOLINE TO START A FIRE;
5 DEAD, 2 DYING

Norwalk, O., Aug. 25.—(UP)—Explosion of a mixture of kerosene and gasoline used to start a fire in a kitchen stove today had cost the lives of five persons and two others were near death in a Norwalk hospital.

The dead:
Mrs. Mary Hicks, 38; her daughter Viva, 3; her baby of eight months; another daughter, Mrs. Robert Pool, 18, and Mrs. Pool's son, Richard, 6 months.

Homor Hicks, husband of Mary, and Robert Pool, his son-in-law, are in the hospital with severe burns and may die.

SEEK AREAS WHERE LIFE RAFTS OF AVIATORS MAY HAVE DRIFTED

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 25.—(UP)—Most of the U. S. naval vessels searching for Miss Mildred Doran and six men, missing Dole fliers, prepared to end the quest today and return to regular duty, but the cruiser Omaha and a destroyer division will continue the hunt until the last vestige of hope for the girl and the airmen is gone.

The naval search originally was scheduled to end Tuesday. Then it was continued until today. Last night Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of naval operations, telegraphed from Washington to Admiral R. H. Jackson, commander in chief of the U. S. battle fleet, authorizing him to use his own judgment as to continued search.

Jackson immediately ordered the Omaha and the destroyers to remain on duty, searching areas to which the missing planes or their life rafts might have drifted.

25 SHIPS TO CONTINUE SEARCH

Washington, Aug. 25.—(UP)—The United States navy today announced plans for a five to six day prolongation of its Pacific wide search for the seven missing Hawaii aviators.

More than 25 ships will participate in the continued search, which will be extended far to the southwest of the island of Hawaii.

Admiral R. H. Jackson, battle fleet commander, has ordered Admiral Luke McNamee, fleet destroyer chief, to take the light cruiser Omaha and six destroyers straight across the Pacific to Hawaii. The Omaha with 15 destroyers is now searching areas 500 to 600 miles out from San Francisco.

Rear Admiral John D. McDonald, naval commandant at Honolulu, reported he would send the mine sweepers Widgeon and Ortolan to search southwest of Hawaii for 529 miles.

The mine sweepers Pelican and the tug Sennadun will search near the islands northwest of the island of Kauai, of the Hawaiian group, as far as French Frigate Shoal. Eight submarines now stationed at Pearl harbor will cover the area southwest from Pearl harbor for 300 miles.

QUITS BUSINESS
WHEN IT LOSES
ITS 12 CUSTOMERS

Roggen, Colo., Aug. 25.—(UP)—The Roggen Electric Light Co., serving the town of Roggen with electricity, today went out of business because it had lost most of its 12 customers.

When some of the dozen customers did not like the service, they did not bother about a franchise fight. They merely installed their own individual plants.

The Colorado public utilities commission yesterday agreed that business prospects looked discouraging for the company and permitted it to discontinue service.

VIOLENT WEATHER MISSES NEW YORK, EXTENDS INTO NEW ENGLAND

New York, Aug. 25.—(UP)—Severe storm damage in the maritime provinces of Canada and in Newfoundland was indicated today. Violent weather missed New York but extended into New England and moved northeastward along its course.

Communication with Nova Scotia and Newfoundland was interrupted from New York. Communication companies in Montreal had been out of touch with Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick since yesterday at 6 P. M.

Warning of the approach of the storm preceded it by more than 24 hours, when it began roaring north and east from the tropics.

Off the north Atlantic coast the storm beat against shipping and most vessels were expected to arrive in this port late for the next few days.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, Aug. 25.—An 80-mile-an-hour wind, accompanied by heavy rain, swept across Newfoundland today from the southwest, isolating most of the island from St. Johns and preventing an immediate estimate of damage.

Rain continued for four hours. When the weather cleared and at noon the wind showed signs of abating. All telegraph lines were down and only portions of the peninsula of Avalon were in communication with this city.

One schooner, name unknown, was sighted shortly before noon from the signal tower. Her canvas had been blown away and she was in distress and drifting seaward. A small steamer put out to assist her.

The Red Cross liner Issa made port at 7 A. M., having felt the full force of the storm for five hours. The vessel was unable to dock and swung at anchor in the stream. One steamer and several sailing vessels dragged their anchors but escaped with minor damage.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Aug. 25.—Nova Scotia was recovering today from a severe wind and rain storm, which struck the province yesterday evening and subsided early today.

Considerable superficial damage was done, but so far today there had been no reports of wrecked vessels nor of loss of life.

FLOODS AND WASHOUTS NUMEROUS

Boston, Aug. 25.—Floods and washouts today lay in the wake of a terrific downpour that swept New England during the night.

Rainfall in many places was reported the heaviest in years.

Throughout this section railroad and street car service was crippled. Telephone lines were down, crops were damaged and streams overflowed.

The heaviest rainfall appeared to have been in southwestern Massachusetts, where Taunton reported 3.71 inches, Brockton 3.12 and Plymouth 3.06.

WHITE RIVER ON ANOTHER RAMPAGE

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 25.—Flood-stricken eastern Arkansas, just recovering from floods that prostrated it during the winter and spring of 1926-27, was being given another bludgeoning today as the waters of the White river poured into the basin farmlands through the crevasses and gaps caused by the last inundation.

Washington, Aug. 25.—The Atlantic coast gales were reported today by the United States weather bureau to have moved north of Newfoundland.

SEEK MOTIVE
IN SON'S KILLING
OF HIS MOTHER

FIND TEAR-STAINED OF MRS. HILL ADDRESSED TO DIVORCED HUSBAND

SEARCH FOR SON HARRY D. HILL OF STREATOR, ILL., FAILS TO YIELD CLUE

Chicago, Aug. 25.—(UP)—Sugestions of the possible missing motive in the slaying of Mrs. Eliza Hill of Streator, Ill., were found today in a tear-stained, penciled note from Mrs. Hill to her divorced husband Dr. H. C. Hill, bearing a mother's tragic complaint of her son's misdeeds.

The search for Harry D. Hill, the son, who is charged with murder in connection with his mother's death, had failed to yield a clue to his possible whereabouts despite close guards maintained at homes of his friends here and at places he frequented in nearby cities. The belief that he might have committed suicide when he learned that his mother's body had been found in the shallow grave in the basement of her Streator home, where he is alleged to have buried it, grew among his friends as police continued to hunt the suspect.

Mrs. Hill's letter, made public at the coroner's inquest at Streator yesterday, told of checks on her account alleged to have been forged by her son; of her suspicion of his heavy gambling losses; of his late hours and his refusal to tell her where he spent his time.

"You can't be with him and know the wrongs I have to get from others," it said. "Please be a real father."

Despite young Hill's disappearance and the circumstantial evidence against him, Miss Alice Sawyer, 20, his fiancée, retained her faith in him.

Assurance that Harry yet would submit to arrest and clear himself of the matricide charge ran through the girl's testimony before a coroner's inquest at Streator yesterday.

One fragment of her story took weight from the theory that young Hill may have quarreled with his mother over his approaching marriage to Miss Sawyer.

Never during all their romance did he speak of any opposition from his family, she said. Yet he was frank with her, she testified, and admitted his passion for gambling.

Two attorneys, who handled the business affairs of Dr. Hill, were among the witnesses.

Both told of approaching young Hill because of the father's interest in having him "brace up and be a man," and of questioning him about the checks over which he had difficulty.

Hill told them, they agreed, that his mother had consented to his signing her name to the checks. They added, however, that they were unable to interview the mother.

Wireless Fog Warnings

Fog is one of the greatest dangers to shipping, but it is hoped that a new wireless invention may in future automatically warn approaching vessels of their nearness before it is too late to avoid a collision.

This invention is in the form of an electric beam that will broadcast a warning signal over a ten-mile radius to other ships in its path. It is independent of the ordinary wireless and need only be turned on in foggy weather.

By locating the signals, other craft will be able to take the necessary steps through the use of the radio compass that shows the direction from which the signals are coming.

So It Seems

Homely girls have it all over their beautiful sisters, if the newspapers tell the truth. The former never have any trouble of any sort, kind or description.

OAK FIRM IN SEAT
ON FOREST THRONE

Serviceable and Beautiful
Wood Supreme.

"Sturdy as an oak." What school-boy doesn't know this monarch of the forests as the symbol of strength and character?

In a multitude of hallowed associations, oak has rooted itself deep in the affections of man, and from the earliest days of recorded history to the present time has been highly valued for its utility and beauty, with the widest range of use of any known wood.

There was even a law in the ancient "Twelve Tables" concerning the ownership of acorns, should they by chance fall upon another man's ground. Scattered throughout the countries of the Old world are individual oaks, preserved and treasured through centuries because of some incident or ceremony that took place beneath their widespread branches.

The extraordinary strength of oak made this wood most serviceable to primitive man, and as civilization refined itself and found room for expressions of beauty, this same durability led woodcraftsmen to trust their finest inspirations to the staunch fiber of oak.

In the Middle Ages oaken shrines, halls, churches and public edifices of matchless beauty were created which still stand in good preservation today. When the old London bridge was taken down in 1827, oak piles from the old foundation were found apparently as sound as when first driven, over 600 years ago.

Breakwaters in the Severn in England are still in use, whose oak piles were driven by the Romans. Ancient shipwrights found that elbowed branches, knotted and gnarled, made excellent ships' timbers, to protect brave men who "went down to the sea in ships."

From the time when massive furniture and beams of oak graced the halls of medieval nobility, through periods of more delicate design, to the present day, dominated by the demand for utility, oak remains the wood you can trust and the wood by which all others are judged.

"As strong as oak; as beautiful as oak; as enduring as oak"—such expressions are common. You never grow tired of oak. Scars do not seem to mar oak as they do other fancier woods; as in man, they seem rather the marks of character.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in his "Anecdote of the Breakfast Table," has this to say of the oak: "Take the oak—and we find it always standing as a type of strength and endurance. I wonder if you ever thought of the single mark of supremacy which distinguishes this tree from all our other forest trees. All the rest of them shirk the work of resisting gravity—the oak alone defies it. It chooses the horizontal direction for its limbs, so that their whole weight may tell, and then stretches them out 50 or 60 feet, so that the strain may be mighty enough to be worth resisting."

SEEK MOTIVE
IN SON'S KILLING
OF HIS MOTHER

FIND TEAR-STAINED OF MRS. HILL ADDRESSED TO DIVORCED HUSBAND

SEARCH FOR SON HARRY D. HILL OF STREATOR, ILL., FAILS TO YIELD CLUE

Chicago, Aug. 25.—(UP)—Suggestions of the possible missing motive in the slaying of Mrs. Eliza Hill of Streator, Ill., were found today in a tear-stained, penciled note from Mrs. Hill to her divorced husband, Dr. H. C. Hill, bearing a mother's tragic complaint of her son's misdeeds.

The search for Harry D. Hill, the son, who is charged with murder in connection with his mother's death, had failed to yield a clue to his possible whereabouts despite close guards maintained at homes of his friends here and at places he frequented in nearby cities. The belief that he might have committed suicide when he learned that his mother's body had been found in the shallow grave in the basement of her Streator home, where he is alleged to have buried it, grew among his friends as police continued to hunt the suspect.

Mrs. Hill's letter, made public at the coroner's inquest at Streator yesterday, told of checks on her account alleged to have been forged by her son; of her suspicion of his heavy gambling losses; of his late hours and his refusal to tell her where he spent his time.

"You can't be with him and know the wrongs I have to get from others," it said. "Please be a real father."

Despite young Hill's disappearance and the circumstantial evidence against him, Miss Alice Sawyer, 20, his fiancée, retained her faith in him.

Assurance that Harry yet would submit to arrest and clear himself of the matricide charge ran through the girl's testimony before a coroner's inquest at Streator yesterday.

One fragment of her story took weight from the theory that young Hill may have quarreled with his mother over his approaching marriage to Miss Sawyer.

Never during all their romance did he speak of any opposition from his family, she said. Yet he was frank with her, she testified, and admitted his passion for gambling.

Two attorneys, who handled the business affairs of Dr. Hill, were among the witnesses.

Both told of approaching young Hill because of the father's interest in having him "brace up and be a man," and of questioning him about the checks over which he had difficulty.

Hill told them, they agreed, that his mother had consented to his signing her name to the checks. They added, however, that they were unable to interview the mother.

Wireless Fog Warnings

Fog is one of the greatest dangers to shipping, but it is hoped that a new wireless invention may in future automatically warn approaching vessels of their nearness before it is too late to avoid a collision.

This invention is in the form of an electric beam that will broadcast a warning signal over a ten-mile radius to other ships in its path. It is independent of the ordinary wireless and need only be turned on in foggy weather.

By locating the signals, other craft will be able to take the necessary steps through the use of the radio compass that shows the direction from which the signals are coming.

So It Seems

OAK FIRM IN SEAT
ON FOREST THRONE

Serviceable and Beautiful Wood Supreme.

"Sturdy as an oak." What school-boy doesn't know this monarch of the forests as the symbol of strength and character?

In a multitude of hallowed associations, oak has rooted itself deep in the affections of man, and from the earliest days of recorded history to the present time has been highly valued for its utility and beauty, with the widest range of use of any known wood.

There was even a law in the ancient "Twelve Tables" concerning the ownership of acorns, should they by chance fall upon another man's ground. Scattered throughout the countries of the Old world are individual oaks, preserved and treasured through centuries because of some incident or ceremony that took place beneath their widespread branches.

The extraordinary strength of oak made this wood most serviceable to primitive man, and as civilization refined itself and found room for expressions of beauty, this same durability led woodcraftsmen to trust their finest inspirations to the staunch fiber of oak.

In the Middle ages oaken shrines, halls, churches and public edifices of matchless beauty were created which still stand in good preservation today. When the old London bridge was taken down in 1827, oak piles from the old foundation were found apparently as sound as when first driven, over 600 years ago.

Breakwaters in the Severn in England are still in use, whose oak piles were driven by the Romans. Ancient shipwrights found that elbowed branches, knotted and gnarled, made excellent ships' timbers, to protect brave men who "went down to the sea in ships."

From the time when massive furniture and beams of oak graced the halls of medieval nobility, through periods of more delicate design, to the present day, dominated by the demand for utility, oak remains the wood you can trust and the wood by which all others are judged.

"As strong as oak; as beautiful as oak; as enduring as oak"—such expressions are common. You never grow tired of oak. Scars do not seem to mar oak as they do other fancier woods; as in man, they seem rather the marks of character.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in his "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," has this to say of the oak: "Take the oak—and we find it always standing as a type of strength and endurance. I wonder if you ever thought of the single mark of supremacy which distinguishes this tree from all our other forest trees. All the rest of them shirk the work of resisting gravity—the oak alone defies it. It chooses the horizontal direction for its limbs, so that their whole weight may rest, and then stretches them out 50 or 60 feet, so that the strain may be mighty enough to be worth resisting."

THURSDAY, AUG. 25, 1927

No. 36

We're off for a short vacation today. We tried to get our family doctor to tell us we needed to get away, but he refused and so we are going anyway. During our absence the "force" will be here to look after your every need.

The synonym of "perfection" is "STANDARD COAL."

An old person is a person who is twenty years older than you are.

One of our trade magazines says that an unsophisticated girl is one who asks her mother for a cookie instead of the butt of her cigarette.

"Don't worry" makes a better motto when you add the word "Others."

A burnt child shuns the fire just as buyers of experience shun substitutes for "STANDARD COAL."

A deaf woman sat down in a seat well to the front of the church and adjusting her ear trumpet settled herself to listen to the sermon. The sexton tipped up and leaning over her whispered, "One toot and out you go."

Before marriage he caught her in his arms every night, now he catches her in his pockets.

Ben Lagerquist says he wishes everybody would remember how to endorse a check. The right end to endorse is the left end, if you get what we mean. And yet a lot of people twist a check in the most awkward position and write across the right end which is the wrong end. So please remember the right end to endorse is the left end and that the right end is the wrong end. But we like em, anyway, no matter which end you endorse.

And this is the end.

STAGE SET FOR FAIR OPENING

Great Educational and Entertainment Program at State Fair in Years

The stage is set for the opening Saturday morning of the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition, Twin Cities, which will continue from September 3 to 10.

With the greatest educational and entertainment program in years, the 68th annual State Fair promises to be the "biggest and best" ever. Prize money totaling $136,511.00 will be presented to winning exhibitors. The entertainment program, with 100 different features, will cost $100,000.00.

Preparations have been made to care for more than 500,000 visitors. Reduced fares on all railroads, with one cent a mile excursions on many of the roads, it is expected to result in the heaviest travel in years to the State Fair.

Much interest will center in the mammoth Aircraft Show to be presented. With nearly two dozen different types of airplanes on display, visitors will be given a splendid opportunity to study close up the development made in aviation in recent months.

The Spirit of San Diego, a sister ship of the Spirit of St. Louis, will be on display. Frank M. Hawks, who made the 1,500 mile flight from Houston, Texas, to the Fair grounds, also will give an exhibition of stunt flying in the monoplane each afternoon.

The coming Fair has been called a "Sousa Fair" because of the 7-day engagement of Lieut. Commander Sousa and his band of 70 pieces. Daily concerts will be given by the band September 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9.

The racing program will be full of thrills. Sig Haugdahl will head a field of 25 automobile drivers competing, September 3, 7 and 10. The horse races are scheduled for Sept. 5, 6, 8 and 9, harness and running horses competing for the $20,000 in purses.

Each night excepting Sunday there will be the fireworks spectacle "The Fall of Troy." These are only the high spots on the program. It will be "The Fair of a Thousand Thrills."

INSTRUCTION CLASSES

Organization of Children for Religious Training Will Start Soon

As has been the custom for the past few years, the Evangelical church will again conduct classes in religious instruction during this school year. These classes will be held during the week at such a time when they will least interfere with the children's school work.

It is requested that all the Sunday school children of the church 12 years or over, meet in the church basement Sunday morning after the ringing of the first bell, 9:15 o'clock, for the purpose of enrollment.

Other children of N. E. Brainerd who may or may not be attending other Sunday schools, but who may wish to take this instruction, should report no later than Monday morning as the books will be ordered at that time.

It is desired that all children who wish to enter these classes should do so at the very beginning as past experience has shown that those who enter later, in the course are at a great disadvantage.

In case the demand for a class under 12 years is desired, arrangements for this will be made later on. Rev. L. F. Strothman, pastor, stated.

SOME GOOD POINTS ON ADVERTISING

THE other day John W. Lapham, of the Eighth District Advertising District, delivered an address, "Developments in Advertising," before the St. Cloud Rotary club, and it conveys so many good ideas that we have condensed the talk and present the salient points.

Getting the attention of the customer is the first law of advertising. The advertisement must be attractive and it must be informative. Words must be simple so that an eighth grade student can understand.

So many attractions lure the average person, that reiteration—showing the same product over and over again—is worth while. Truth in advertising is a very important matter for a man who wants to stay in business.

Advertising to women is receiving very serious attention at the present time, as the women buy most of the products used in the home. A woman is generally a much better buyer than her husband. The average woman wants to know five things when she is purchasing wearing apparel. They are: What it is called and its definition; the material it is made of and its style; sizes available; colors available; the price.

The problem of the retailer is to study his community and find its true sales possibilities. He must study his customers' buying habits to learn the best sales methods.

Window displays are very advantageous. We see so many windows that are neglected and do not attract attention. Smart merchants know the value of good window displays from the standpoint of sales.

Selling the consumer directly—house to house—is being done more and more by outside firms. These house to house salesmen are serious competitors of the local business man. It is a pertinent question whether or not the local business men have not been "resting on their oars," and have neglected to meet this competition. It cannot be done by resolutions of censure, but might be advantageously offset by local merchants adopting the same tactics. Some progressive stores utilize the spare time of their clerks in having them call upon their customers in ascertaining the customers' desires. Human beings are actuated by two basic urges in this world, self regard and least effort.

In other words, people are going to do what they think is best for themselves, and they always do those things in the easiest way they can find. Putting it more roughly—we are selfish and we are lazy. It is well to keep these fundamental human urges in mind, in merchandising and in advertising. No Loyalty Leagues or resolutions of Chambers of Commerce can materially affect these basic urges.

These are only a few of the problems that every community has to face. The most successful communities are attacking these problems, trying to understand them, and are meeting the wants of their people.

There is a decided tendency now towards decentralization in industry. The costs of congesting people in cities is getting too high, and many new plants are being built in small towns. This is especially true in Indiana, Ohio and Illinois. The connecting up of electric power in large systems is making power as available in smaller areas, as in the large centers. This makes it possible to get constant power in the smaller cities which wasn't practicable and dependable 20 years ago.

We have quoted and condensed from the address in full as it was presented in the St. Cloud Daily Times.

FIFTEEN MILE AN HOUR DRIVER

THE speed mad driver who crashes over the rural highways at fifty miles an hour is not the only menace to life with which the sensible drivers of automobiles have to contend, says the Anoka Herald.

There is the fellow who pokes along a main highway at fifteen miles an hour. He ambles thus to "pet," to enjoy the scenery or because his old vehicle might fall apart if he drives any faster. That chap is a serious menace.

He has behind him a long line of cars with drivers who are impatient with such a snail's progress.

To pass him they have to watch a chance when the left side of the narrow paving is unoccupied. Failure to judge the distance away and speed of an approaching car has led to a lot of fatal accidents this year.

The new traffic law recently passed by the state legislature seems to cover this slow fellow as well as the speeder.

Why not speed up the laggards as well as hold down the swift?

FRAGILE THINGS POWERFUL

FRAGILE things often have a power of their own. Take our flowers, easily picked, easily broken, yet they have a sweetness, a beauty, a glory of their own which is continued in remembrance even when the blossom is lost.

Our flower show with its thousands of fragile blooms is a factor in our community. It has beautified our town, caused greater interest in civic appearance and development and has converted the hobby of raising beautiful blooms into one of the most valuable assets of Brainerd.

A pretty flower bed transforms alike the property where it is located and the community which it graces. We know that when somebody brings a bouquet to the Dispatch office, the whole force is anxious to possess the posies.

INSPIRATION, which has to work at stated periods and grind out its modicum of thought, becomes at times as hard a job as the proverbial hewing of wood and carrying of water.

WE suppose when the Brainerd delegation gets back from Little Falls it will have a strained neck from watching Lindbergh perform his aerial stunts.

SAW a picture of Lindbergh going down Nicolet avenue and the police kept the crowds to the sidewalk and gave Lindy all the street to travel in.

GUESS our county fair picked a poor date when it opened the same date that Lindbergh visits Little Falls.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beautiful orphan, whose rascally brother, realizing her worldly value, barter her for gold to Ravier, rich connoisseur of women. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris, where they wander into a boarding house and, in a great and sacred love, live happily together, though poor. While Fabien is out, his chum Tiberge arrives and, learning they are not married, plans to "save" Fabien. Meanwhile, Manon's brother eavesdrops.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

"Monsieur, why must you interfere," inquired Manon. "Fabien told me just this morning that he had never been so happy in his life before."

"Momentary forgetfulness, such as Fabien is experiencing, is not good for a man's soul. My child," the cruelty of Tiberge's words was softened somewhat by his spiritual expression. "I will be brutally frank with you. For Fabien's sake you must leave him."

"I will never do that! He would not want me to," protested Manon stormily.

"The truth is harsh," continued Tiberge with convincing simplicity. "Yet this you must know—you have robbed Fabien of his parents, his career and his God. In exchange for these—what pitiful thing have you given him?"

"I have given him my heart—my whole heart," her lips trembled

"We want to be well out of here before Fabien returns."

piteously and she cried in spite of herself as she continued, "All, all of it."

"Yes, that is true, but what of the day when he awakens from this dream of the flesh and weighs your love against all that it has cost him?" continued Tiberge, mercilessly.

With a piteous cry Manon buried her head in her arms and sobbed.

Quick to take advantage of a point gained, Tiberge went over to Manon and placed a kindly hand on her shoulder. He had promised the elder Des Grieux to locate Fabien and bring him home. But at that time he had not pictured Manon as such an appealing child and his duty became harder to perform when he saw her, crushed and heartbroken at his prediction of Fabien's future.

"If you love him, as you say you do, you will leave and never see him again." Moved shaken than he cared to admit, Tiberge turned toward the door and silently departed.

Manon's heart was too filled with tears and her mind too confused by this sudden turn of events for her to reply. Shaken with sobs she rocked piteously back and forth, not knowing what to do. What should she do? Did Fabien's friend tell the truth about her ruining his life? It was all such a cruel nightmare in the midst of their happiness that it seemed unreal. Manon wiped the tears from her streaming eyes and, as she saw Lescaut swagger out from his hiding place with a hateful air of "I told you so!" she could not restrain a shudder.

Under pressure of this new worry, Manon had forgotten all about her brother being there. She implored piteously, "Andre, won't you please go and leave me alone?"

"No, you heard what he said—do you want to ruin Fabien's life as well as play the deuce with your own prospects?" Lescaut said this simply for effect. What he really meant was that if she continued playing the fool he would be left with an empty purse, whereas if he turned her over to the Comte his pockets would be filled to overflowing. "Come on, get your bonnet," he continued impatiently. "We want to be well out of here before Fabien returns."

Cobra Deadliest Snake

The cobra is the deadliest of all snakes. If it has bitten four or five persons in a short period the sixth bite is not necessarily fatal. Otherwise the victim dies in a few minutes.

More Important

If you are not a good talker, don't become discouraged. Perhaps you can become a good thinker, which is more important.—Acheson Globe.

"I must see him." Manon was praying that Fabien would come back and not let her go.

"It will mean prison for him if the police chance to find you here."

It was this terrible thought that decided Manon. Fabien should not suffer through her! She would go away and return after the danger had passed. Fabien would understand that it was just a temporary arrangement.

"I will go with you," announced Manon resolutely. "But I must leave a note for Fabien." Brushing away her tears she sat down at the little desk.

Marie startled them both at this point by bursting into the room. She explained that after much arguing she had persuaded the jeweler to retrade the locket for Fabien's buckles. Marie was awed by Lescaut's silken presence, and after giving Manon the package she stood around, waiting to find out what was happening.

"Darling," Manon wrote, "Andre says that the police will arrest you unless I leave here for a little while. It will mean an absence of only a day or so—sweet heart—you are not to imagine that I am going away forever."

Goodbye, Manon.

P. S. Here are your buckles—a little farewell present."

While Manon penned the note Lescaut emptied the wall pegs of her simple little dresses and hastily stuffed them into her box. He was fearful that Fabien would return before they got away. Yet in spite of the risk he must take time to read Manon's parting message. An opportunity offered itself as Manon bade Marie a tearful good bye.

"Look after Fabien!" she said, "And tell Fabien I will be back soon..."

During the second that Manon's back was turned, Lescaut had read the note and maliciously torn off the first portion. What he left was complete and final—but not in the least the meaning Manon meant to convey to her lover.

Lescaut's experience as a gambler had trained him to look ahead to the next move, which is what he did now by surreptitiously slipping Marie a few gold pieces as Manon tearfully started for the door. His farewell to the serving girl was also characteristic, she might be as useful as an ace up his sleeve, he would keep her interest alive.

Just as the door closed Marie received her first kiss from a silk coated grandee. The fact that it was wafted to her from his finger tips made it no less wonderful.

Life for Marie was becoming heavenly and it was all due to her Angel, Manon, who had gone away crying. Marie could not understand why Marie from Fabien would bring forth a single tear. She hated him and decided to "fix things up" so that when he came back she could "watch him squirm" at the nice story she was going to make up about Manon.

CHAPTER VIII

During the week of Fabien's earth born happiness with Manon he had curtailed personal expenses to the extent of depriving himself of necessities so that he could buy a chain for her locket. He planned that it should be a first week anniversary present and felt as rich as a King when the frail silver necklace was safely stored away in his pocket.

Eager to delight his adored one with the surprise, Fabien hurried home. Had he not been so absorbed in his own dreams he would have seen Lescaut helping the fearful Manon into a coach before the pension door!

Was it Fate, or what, that made them pass each other so closely without knowing how near they were or anything of the other's need?

Fabien gaily climbed the stairs, three at a time, to their love nest and, filled with eager happiness, pulled the door wide and shouted, "Manon, dear!" No answer. "Come out from your hiding place—I have something for you!" Still no answer.

Unwilling to wait, Fabien began looking about the room. The playful search came to a rigid halt when he saw the empty wall pegs. "Manon's clothes gone! Dear God, what has happened?" An awful fear gripped Fabien's heart. Like a blind man he groped about the room, still hoping against hope that he would find her. Presently his hand brushed something to the floor. His buckles! He looked at them in amazement and his heart almost stopped beating when he saw Manon's note. Without touching it he read from the torn paper:

Good bye, MANON.

P. S.—Here are your buckles—a little farewell present."

Fabien stared at the heartbreaking message so long that his eyes grew blurred and he could no longer see. Finally something within him seemed to snap. Galvanized into action, he opened the door, calling wildly for Marie.

FEDERAL DAIRY PRODUCTS GRADES

(Organized by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Federal dairy products inspectors will be known as official graders and the government inspection certificates on dairy products will be known as official grading certificates, beginning July 1, the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, has announced in revised regulations. The change in designation has been made to clarify the work of the department with reference to its various activities relating to dairy and poultry products, and to conform to international terms with respect to grading of these products for quality and condition.

READ THE WANT ADS DAILY

The bureau announced that the use of existing inspection certificates will continue until the supply is used up. The new certificates of quality which are used by firms to seal cartons of eggs which are packed from graded lots, and to inclose in cartons of butter which is packed from churnings which have been officially graded, will read substantially as follows:

"This is to certify that the churnings of butter (or the lot of eggs) from which the butter (or eggs) contained in this carton was taken was graded by an official grader of the United States Department of Agriculture; that the date of said grading and number of grading certificate are perforated or stamped hereon, and that the quality of the butter (or eggs) when inspected was 95 score or higher, if butter, (and U. S. No. 1 Extra or better, if eggs)."

Individuals and organizations using this government service are advised that they may continue to use their present supply of inspection certificates and of certificates of quality issued to applicants for inspection under present regulations, but copy to be submitted to the printer for the printing of any new supplies should be submitted first for the approval of the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

A constantly increasing demand for the official grading of butter, cheese and eggs is reported. A chain-store organization operating 125 retail stores in the Bay cities of California, and a large butter and egg jobbing firm in Boston have been among recent applicants for the use of certificates of quality in their retail cartoned products.

The government inspection, or grading service as it is known, was established in the bureau of markets in the Department of Agriculture in 1917 in response to a demand for such a service from producers, wholesalers, retailers and consumers. The service has grown steadily until now there are 36 official graders. Grading offices are maintained in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Plymouth, Wis., Minneapolis, Duluth, San Francisco, Petaluma, Calif., and at various points in Missouri.

In Minnesota alone, 80,000,000 pounds of butter a year is being graded; in New York city the annual grading of live poultry will approximate 12,000 carloads; in Missouri there will be inspected this year some 500 carloads of eggs. The Boston and Philadelphia services are carried on in co-operation with local produce exchanges, and in Minnesota, Missouri and California in co-operation with state departments of agriculture.

Select Sire to Improve

Good Qualities of Herd

A sire should be selected to improve the dairy qualities of the herd he is to head, and should, therefore, be descended from animals that have proved their dairy qualities.

Find out, if possible, the production records of his dam, two granddams and four great-granddams. Learn if his sire and two grandsires have gotten high producing daughters.

See the offspring and dam, if possible, and find out whether they indicate that the sire in question comes from stock with proved transmitting ability.

Remember that 50 per cent of the inheritance of an animal comes from his sire and dam; that 25 per cent is divided between his four ancestors in the second generation, and 12½ per cent is divided between eight ancestors in the third generation back. The remaining 12½ per cent in his inheritance is divided among all the ancestors.

Remember also that many ancestors may not have had a chance to prove themselves, and that a pedigree may therefore not tell all the truth about the animal in question.

Don't select a poor individual, however long and astounding be his pedigree.

DAIRY FACTS

FEDERAL DAIRY PRODUCTS GRADES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Federal dairy products inspectors will be known as official graders and the government inspection certificates on dairy products will be known as official grading certificates, beginning July 1, the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, has announced in revised regulations. The change in designation has been made to clarify the work of the department with reference to its various activities relating to dairy and poultry products, and to conform to international terms with respect to grading of these products for quality and condition.

READ THE WANT ADS DAILY

The bureau announced that the use of existing inspection certificates will continue until the supply is used up. The new certificates of quality which are used by firms to seal cartons of eggs which are packed from graded lots, and to inclose in cartons of butter which is packed from churnings which have been officially graded, will read substantially as follows:

"This is to certify that the churnings of butter (or the lot of eggs) from which the butter (or eggs) contained in this carton was taken was graded by an official grader of the United States Department of Agriculture; that the date of said grading and number of grading certificate are perforated or stamped hereon, and that the quality of the butter (or eggs) when inspected was 93 score or higher, if butter, (and U. S. No. 1 Extras or better, if eggs)."

Individuals and organizations using this government service are advised that they may continue to use their present supply of inspection certificates and of certificates of quality issued to applicants for inspection under present regulations, but copy to be submitted to the printer for the printing of any new supplies should be submitted first for the approval of the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

A constantly increasing demand for the official grading of butter, cheese and eggs is reported. A chain-store organization operating 125 retail stores in the Bay cities of California, and a large butter and egg jobbing firm in Boston have been among recent applicants for the use of certificates of quality in their retail cartoned products.

The government inspection, or grading service as it is known, was established in the bureau of markets in the Department of Agriculture in 1917 in response to a demand for such a service from producers, wholesalers, retailers and consumers. The service has grown steadily until now there are 36 official graders. Grading offices are maintained in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Plymouth, Wis., Minneapolis, Duluth, San Francisco, Petaluma, Calif., and at various points in Missouri.

In Minnesota alone, 80,000,000 pounds of butter a year is being graded; in New York city the annual grading of live poultry will approximate 12,000 carloads; in Missouri there will be inspected this year some 500 carloads of eggs. The Boston and Philadelphia services are carried on in co-operation with local produce exchanges, and in Minnesota, Missouri and California in co-operation with state departments of agriculture.

Select Sire to Improve Good Qualities of Herd

A sire should be selected to improve the dairy qualities of the herd he is to head, and should, therefore, be descended from animals that have proved their dairy qualities.

Find out, if possible, the production records of his dam, two granddams and four great-granddams. Learn if his sire and two grandsires have gotten high producing daughters.

See the offspring and dam, if possible, and find out whether they indicate that the sire in question comes from stock with proved transmitting ability.

Remember that 50 per cent of the inheritance of an animal comes from his sire and dam; that 25 per cent is divided between his four ancestors in the second generation, and 12½ per cent is divided between eight ancestors in the third generation back. The remaining 12½ per cent in his inheritance is divided among all the ancestors.

Remember also that many ancestors may not have had a chance to prove themselves, and that a pedigree may therefore not tell all the truth about the animal in question.

Don't select a poor individual, however long and astounding be his pedigree.

BOBBY JONES TO MEET JOHNSTON IN 36 HOLE MATCH TODAY

PLAY OPENS TODAY IN THE QUARTER FINAL ROUND AT MINIKAHDA

GEORGE VON ELM DEFEATED BY HARRY LEGG, MINNEAPOLIS VETERAN

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Minikahda Country Club, Minneapolis, Aug. 25.—Eight of the nation's leading amateur golfers, including most of the pre-tournament favorites, remained in the National Amateur Championships today to play the quarter-final round.

George Von Elm, last year's champion, was missing from the list. He was defeated in the second round of match play yesterday by Harry Legg, Minneapolis veteran. Max R. Marston also was out of the picture, a victim of Francis Ouimet in yesterday's play.

Bobby Jones, who came unpleasantly close to being defeated in the first round yesterday morning by young Maurice McCarthy of New York, was to meet Harrison "Jimmy" Johnston today in a 36-hole match that seemed likely to provide as good golf as any yet-to in the tournament will furnish.

Jones remained favorite to win the championship, but indications were that it would take his best brand of golf to conquer the experts who remained in the running.

The twist of fate which eliminated Von Elm made Jones' match with Johnston today one of the most important of the tournament. Jones Tuesday tied the Minikahda course record of 67 strokes set by this same Johnston, a Minneapolis player who flashed into national golf prominence by remaining leader in the National Open for two days this year.

Jones' golf yesterday, while "rich" in the pinches, was not the golf the famous Bobby showed Tuesday. McCarthy threw a cruel scare into the Atlanta and although Jones was in no danger during his second round match with Eugene Homans, he was forced to play consistent golf.

Roland MacKenzie, of Washington faced Legg today and was given a little better than an even chance to win. The winner of this match meets the victor of the Chick Evans-Eddie Held battle in the semi-finals tomorrow.

If form counts the veteran Evans twice wearer of the Amateur crown, should come through to meet Jones in Saturday's final.

If Jones beats Johnston he must meet the winner of the Francis Ouimet-Philips Finlay match.

Legg's defeat of Von Elm yesterday was not altogether surprising, as the lean Californian has been off his game since coming east and Legg is a player of no mean ability. When the Minnesotan is right he is certainly no set-up for any one.

It was not until the eighteenth hole, however, that George was beaten.

Yesterday's closest match was between Roland MacKenzie and David Martin. The Washington player was forced to an extra hole to win.

The rest of the matches of the tournament, starting today, will go 36 rounds. Four survivors of today's matches will meet tomorrow, and the two victors will play for the title Saturday.

Minikahda Country Club, Minneapolis, Aug. 25.—Roland MacKenzie youthful Washington golfer, had an advantage of two strokes over Harry Legg, Minneapolis golfer who eliminated George Von Elm, defending champion, yesterday, in a second round match, as they finished the first nine holes of their 36-hole third round match today.

MacKenzie was playing almost perfect golf while Legg failed to heed the old golf adage, "Use no hooks."

On the seventh hole, for instance, the Washington star knocked his tee shot flush against a tree. MacKenzie then got under his ball with a masher and caught up to Legg on the green to halve the hole.

On the third hole, MacKenzie got his deuce with a 39-foot putt. The ball, a fast one on a fast green, hit the back of the cup, bounced into the air and fell in. Legg had two putts from about the same distance to get his par on this hole.

Legg's card was 33 and MacKenzie's 36 for the nine holes.

Eddie Kenna knocked two homers in the wild seventh inning to equal the world's record.

St. Paul, Minn.—Eighth and ninth inning rallies gave Columbus a 7 to 5 victory over St. Paul here, after Columbus had trailed in earlier frames. Two St. Paul errors contributed to the victory.

Milwaukee, Wis.—In a loosely played and heavy hitting game, Indianapolis won from Milwaukee 9 to 7. Eight Indianapolis men took free passes to first and Stroh and Gerken hit successive homers.

"TO HIM THAT HATH SHALL BE GIVEN"

SCRIPTURAL ADAGE SUMS UP FARM SITUATION THIS YEAR

NOT "BANNER" YEAR IN CROPS, LATTER SHORT IN MANY COMMODITIES

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United States Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Aug. 25—(UP)—The scriptural adage, "To Him That Hath Shall Be Given," sums up fairly accurately the farm situation this year, which was described today by the Agricultural department from present indications as "average."

While it is not a "banner" year, short crops in several commodities—corn, cotton, oats and most fruit—will result in good money for those farmers who have them. On the other hand, farmers who have had bad luck with these crops, will have a poor year. All these crops have suffered this year.

For the exception, the potato crop is large this year, and potato prices accordingly will not be high.

Outside of these "spotty" situations, the outlook is for a fair year. The wheat crop is good, and wheat farmers will get good prices. The outlook for cattle, generally, is promising and the general level of prices next year may possibly be higher.

Sheep and hogs are about the same this year as last, but the sheep market is on a gradual decline due to large production for the last few years, and the agriculture department suggests caution as to further expansion.

The corn crop this year, according to present estimates, will be the shortest, with one exception, in 26 years, and prices now are about 30 per cent higher than last year. Because of the poor corn and oats crops this year, farmers tend to plant more winter wheat and the agriculture department has issued a warning against this fearing a huge crop with low prices. This would mean a large surplus, calling for extra marketing methods, some of the plans for which have been opposed by the administration as unsound.

Not only are the corn and oat crops short this year, but stocks of both on farms are considerably below last year, which will tend to increase prices es still further for those having these commodities on hand.

Reduced acreage and heavy infestation of the Boll Weevil have cut the cotton crop considerably, with an estimated production of 13,492,000 bales as compared with nearly 18,000,000 bales last year. Cotton now is selling around 20 cents, while it was down to 14 last year. Many cotton farmers, however, will not reap heavily from the higher prices because of the ravages of their crop by the Boll Weevil. Mississippi Valley cotton suffered heavily, also from the floods.

Generally, the department considers crop prospects excellent in North Dakota, Montana, Nebraska, Idaho and Oregon, where agitation for government aid has received considerable support. It sees a fairly good outlook for most other states, with the exception of four middle western states, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri; Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas, which suffered from wet weather early in the season, and Florida and New Mexico, where droughts have been damaging.

The poor choice of color has an important influence on a woman's final appearance, points out Ellen Bourne in an article in Liberty Magazine.

lift themselves out of the ranks of the ordinary by a better understanding of color.

"The woman of neutral coloring—with hair, eyes and skin of no particular brilliance," Miss Bourne explains, "needs warm color to inject life into her personality, such as henna, terra cotta, apricot, a blue somewhere in between the cold, hard shades and midnight. Women with florid complexions must avoid shades that have red or pink in them. Blonds with high color cheapen the effect with such shades as red, rose, bright pink, fuchsia or orange."

"There are muddy browns, purples, taupe and light, strong blues, that bring out every bad feature of skin and eyes, and that, combined with an unrelieved black, may add a dozen years to the woman who has no right to use them. Gray-haired women with that lovely blue light in their hair have to be supercritical in their color choice to avoid giving an ugly yellowish look to their heads."

New Hair Styles Both Puzzling, Contradictory

Contradictory fashion now provides for both long and short hair. Short hair or at least the appearance of short hair is given approval during daytime hours, while for evening the chignon is coming back to its own. Some meet this demand by letting the hair grow and wearing it in the daytime arranged so as to look bobbed. Others meet the situation with a wig. These wigs do not always follow the color of the hair beneath. White wigs are popular abroad, especially if they have either a certain pinkish or bluish tinge.

Hosiery Waterproofed, No More Rain, Mud Marks

Waterproof stock-ings have become popular with English women of fashion, and showers no longer cause rainmarks down the front of the stockings and mud splashes up the back. The waterproofing employed does not alter the appearance of the silk. Rain rolls off without leaving an impression and the application of a damp sponge removes mud stains. These stockings can be washed again and again without any ill effects.

Knitted Capes for Sports Wear

Knitted military capes for sports wear are much seen in Paris. One pretty model, much approved, has three colored stripes on the small turn-over collar. The cape itself is beige or natural colored wool. The new capes carry out the ensemble idea. They are chosen to match either skirt or sweater worn under them.

Petrified Rainbow

Rainbow bridge, situated north of the Arizona line in Utah, is the largest known natural bridge. It is of salmon-pink sandstone and is shaped like a rainbow. It was proclaimed a national monument in 1910.

Founded by Columbus

The first European city in the New world, named Isabella, was founded by Christopher Columbus in December, 1493, on the northern shore of Haiti, about 25 miles west of the present town of Puerto Plata.

Almost Universal Belief

That is the reason we are especially grateful to the customer who tells us when she does not find what she wants in our store. By enabling us to keep pace with the magic strides of consumer development, she is helping us, not only to serve her better in the future, but the whole community as well.

MORE THAN TWO MILLION HOUSEWIVES HAVE PROVED THIS SUGAR IN JELLY MAKING AND PRESERVING . . . IT IS GUARANTEED!

The Grand Champion Jelly Maker proved this sugar

In the Great Western jelly-making and preserving contest just closed, Mrs. E. H. Dinsmore, 4011 East 68th Street, Kansas City, Mo., was chosen grand champion. The judge declared that her jellies and strawberry preserves were perfect. For the first time in her jelly making, Mrs. Dinsmore used Great Western Sugar . . . and found it perfect. Here she gives her own observations on jelly making.

Mrs. E. H. Dinsmore
4011 East 68th Street
Kansas City, Missouri

DOWN in southwestern Missouri for many years I made jelly and preserves for the county fair. When I learned of the Great Western contest, I presented the matter to my organization, Circle 1, Women's League, Covenant Presbyterian Church, and we decided to enter.

I had never before used beet sugar in jelly making. While not required, we decided that in this instance we would use Great Western Sugar.

Now that I have seen the entries in our elimination contest, and proved this sugar myself in the entry which won the grand championship, I can truly say that I know delicious preserves and lovely jelly can be made with Great Western Sugar. It is good! I use it just as I would any other sugar.

I have a few simple rules for jelly making:

Make small batches at a time, since that is one of the secrets of getting clear, firm, quivering jelly such as any housewife likes to serve.

Be careful to select good fruit.

Observe extreme cleanliness in every operation.

Strain the fruit through cheesecloth and again through cotton flannel to get clearness.

Bring the juice to a boil before putting in the sugar.

After the sugar is dissolved, strain the juice again through cheesecloth to get out any specks that may still remain.

Be very careful not to cook the juice too long.

By all means we mothers should teach the art of jelly making to our daughters, so that this most delicious of home-made sweet foods will continue to be served regularly on American tables.

"TO HIM THAT HATH SHALL BE GIVEN"

SCRIPTURAL ADAGE SUMS UP FARM SITUATION THIS YEAR

NOT "BANNER" YEAR IN CROPS, LATTER SHORT IN MANY COMMODITIES

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United States Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Aug. 25.—(UP)—The scriptural adage, "To Him That Hath Shall Be Given," sums up fairly accurately the farm situation this year, which was described today by the Agricultural department from present indications as "average."

While it is not a "banner" year, short crops in several commodities—corn, cotton, oats and most fruit—will result in good money for those farmers who have them. On the other hand, farmers who have had bad luck with these crops, will have a poor year. All these crops have suffered this year.

For the exception, the potato crop is large this year, and potato prices accordingly will not be high.

Outside of these "spotty" situations the outlook is for a fair year. The wheat crop is good, and wheat farmers will get good prices. The outlook for cattle, generally, is promising and the general level of prices next year may possibly be higher.

Sheep and hogs are about the same this year as last, but the sheep market is on a gradual decline due to large production for the last few years, and the agriculture department suggests caution as to further expansion.

The corn crop this year, according to present estimates, will be the shortest, with one exception, in 26 years, and prices now are about 30 per cent higher than last year. Because of the poor corn and oats crops this year, farmers tend to plant more winter wheat and the agriculture department has issued a warning against this fearing a huge crop with low prices. This would mean a large surplus, calling for extra marketing methods, some of the plans for which have been opposed by the administration as unsound.

Not only are the corn and oat crops short this year, but stocks of both on farms are considerably below last year, which will tend to increase prices still further for those having these commodities on hand.

Reduced acreage and heavy infestation of the Boll Weevil have cut the cotton crop considerably, with an estimated production of 13,492,000 bales as compared with nearly 18,000,000 bales last year. Cotton now is selling around 20 cents, while it was down to 14 last year. Many cotton farmers, however, will not reap heavily from the higher prices because of the ravages of their crop by the Boll Weevil. Mississippi Valley cotton suffered heavily, also from the floods.

Generally, the department considers crop prospects excellent in North Dakota, Montana, Nebraska, Idaho and Oregon, where agitation for government aid has received considerable support. It sees a fairly good outlook for most other states, with the exception of four middle western states, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri; Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas, which suffered from wet weather early in the season, and Florida and New Mexico, where droughts have been damaging.

Differences in Hair

It is an unexplainable biological fact that curly hair does not grow so long as straight hair.

Smart Crepe de Chine Dress Is Easily Made

This smart crepe de chine dress, says the Woman's Home Companion, may be made with no trouble in a surprisingly short time. There's a choice of colors—beige, blue and white—to cover the summer vacation season and also navy and black if you need to think of the dress for the fall. A double collar and cuffs with the top layer of cream crepe de chine provide a becoming bit of contrast.

Wrong Choice of Color Can Wreck Appearance

The poor choice of color has an important influence on a woman's final appearance, points out Eileen Bourne in an article in Liberty Magazine. "There are countless women who could lift themselves out of the ranks of the ordinary by a better understanding of color.

"The woman of neutral coloring—with hair, eyes and skin of no particular brilliance," Miss Bourne explains, "needs warm color to inject life into her personality, such as henna, terra cotta, apricot, a blue somewhere in between the cold, hard shades and midnight. CHAMPIONS AND CHAMPIONSHIPS DIFFERENT NOW

15 YEARS AGO MARY K. BROWNE PLAYED 3 FINALS IN ONE AFTERNOON

TODAY CHAMPIONSHIP TESTS ARE STRUNG OVER WEEKS

By MARY K. BROWNE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1927, by United Press)
New York, Aug. 25.—How champions and championships have changed! Fifteen years ago when I won my first national championship, I played three finals in one afternoon, singles, ladies doubles and mixed doubles. I was tired but a healthy physical tired from which I completely recovered with one night's good rest, and was keen for more tennis.

Today our championships are divided with singles and ladies' doubles one week and mixed doubles during the men's national doubles the following week. The players in the singles championship are called upon for only one singles match the first day and one singles and a doubles match the following days.

If rain intercedes, as it did Tuesday, the tournament is carried on into the following week, there is no doubling up. Helen Wills has further cut down her play by entering in only the singles which means that she will appear once a day and in her present form most of her matches will probably take her about thirty minutes.

Helen told me yesterday that she did not feel keen for two events, that her tennis abroad had tired her physically and mentally. This means to bear out Rene Lacoste's contention that it is a greater strain to win than to lose.

Helen's lack of keenness for tournament competition is regrettable in that the champion sets the standard of play in tennis. In golf one always has par as the perfect opponent. If Helen does not play in the tournaments the younger players do not have an opportunity to play against her and improve their games accordingly.

If Helen continues to cut down her tournament competition she will acquire a "cotton battin" reputation.

It is different with William Tilden and Molla Mallory. They simply love tennis and are never so happy as when they are competing. Personally, I love their enthusiasm and unselfishness. Both Tilden and Molla are willing to pair with weaker partners to insure a contest, rather than select the best player in the tournament as a partner to be sure of a win.

Tuesday rain sent the players to the bridge tables on the veranda. I interfered with several bridge games to glean a few details for my column.

Eileen Bennett, the beautiful girl from England, has a carload of tennis costumes, rivaling the great Suzanne Lenglen's famous tennis wardrobe. Mrs. Bennett admits that Eileen has thirty tennis dresses. I figure she should have costumes "to let." They are one piece sleeveless dresses with plaited skirts, beautifully tailored. Miss Bennett is a picture of loveliness on the court.

Even the tennis rackets are getting dressy. You can see all kinds of fancy colored strings and various stripes around the frames and handles. Eileen Bennett has E. B. monogrammed in gold upon her racket. No player of the first magnitude walks into the stadium with less than three rackets.

The English girls wear shorter skirts than the Americans, just to their knees. They wear long, yes, very long, almost theatrical in length white lisle stockings with short white wool socks which turn down just below the angle. Their dresses and those of the majority of the Americans are the one piece sleeveless dress.

Helen Wills, however, still sticks to her middie blouse and the plaited skirt. She likes the two piece costume because her blouse instead of her skirt hikes when she takes her strokes. I would like to see Helen in one of Eileen Bennett's dresses. Helen would look stunning.

Women are not allowed to wear spikes, regardless of the condition of the courts. The men insist upon them. Shall I say the women are lighter on their feet, less prone to slip and let them feel complimented rather than slighted?

Golf Has Its Ups and Also Its Downs

Just in case there may still be some doubt in your mind as to whether golf remains our most inconsistent sport, the following might be brought to your attention: Tommy Armour, who scored 76, 73, 76, 76 to tie for the national open and then showed consistency by winning the play-off with another 76, went on a course probably four strokes easier in his very next start and took an 80 for the first round in the Shawnee open. And Johnny Farrell, one of the favorites for the big play at Oakmont, who stubbed his toe on the first round with an 81, went on to set the pace with an excellent 68 in the same tourney in which Armour took his 80.
